FRANCISCO LAINFIESTA.

Envoy from Guatemain and San Salvado and Minister Resident from Honduras. Since the death of General Barrios, in 1855, Goutemala has had until recently no diplomatic representative at Washington. The same has been the case with the Re-publics of San Salvador and Honduras for several years past. Senor Lainflesta nov officially represents all three republics He is strongly in favor of the union of the Central American republics, Guatemala San Salvador, Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Honduras, under one confederation and government head, and considers such a union a question of only a few years Strong efforts are being made at the pres ept time to reunite those five States into and to re-establish the old Republic of Central America. This transformation will secure for it greater consideration and respect from foreign nations, and facilitate the unfolding of its destiny, which to-day is hampered and embarrassed by petty and

The staples of these favored countries of Central America are, says a writer in Frank Leslie's, those of every olime. Those more generally exported are coffee, sugar, indigo, caeao, vanilla, a variety of fruits, many sorts of peltry, india rubber, balsam, tor-toise-shell, procious stones and dye-wood, mineral quartz, sisal-hemp, ramie, etc. The importations to Central America amount to $20,000,000 or $25,000,000 in value. Of this sum, five-sixths go to Europe, while the United States, notwithstanding their advantageous position, only reap a small fraction, instead of the larger ticles of important cotton goods, hard-

Strait of Magelian, The importations are made through the southern coast of Central America, because on the northern coast there are but muletracks, long and difficult, thus making the carriage slow and costly. The State of -5 ACTS --- TABLEAUX - Costa Rica has the only railroad on the northern side; its terminus is Port Limon. Nicaragua centers her hope upon the interoceanic canal. Honduras and Guatemala are projecting inter-oceanic railroads from the north side. San Salvador has no coast to the north. There are extensive mines of gold and silver in the Territory of Honduras, which are now worked by large American companies.

Francisco Lainfiesta was born in the city of Guatemala on the 4th of October, 1837. Turning his attention to an industrial occupation, as a boy he became an able worker in bronze and marble. Subsequently he engaged in agriculture, and rose to be man-ager on a plantation in the raising and the manufacture of two of Guatemala's chief products, sugar and rum. In 1855 he secured a clerkship in the State Department, which he held for five years. His next venture in life was that of a merchant. While thus engaged he studied law, became a notary public, and in 1860 he was admitto the bar. From 1860 to 1871 Sener Lainflesta practiced his profession very successfully. When General Barrios be-came President of the republic, he offered Lainflesta the portfolio of the Public Works, which he accepted, and filled with ability, being very energetic and enthusins tie in the promotion of all works of internal

TWO COSTLY LETTERS. Hew a Boston Woman Posted Some Mall Matter for Her Husband.

Mr. A., a State street broker, was leaving town the other day, and his wife drove with him to the station in a hired cab, writes a Boston correspondent. Just before taking the train he found in his pocket a couple of letters he had forgotten to mail, and handed them to Mrs. A., saying that they were of importance, and asked her to post them. The lady took them with her into the cab, and drove away from the station. Whether she was absent-minded from excess of grief at parting with her husband, or from some other cause, is not evident, but certain it is that in a fit of abstruction, she quietly slipped both the letters into the crack in the door into which the glass half slides. When it dawned upon Mrs. A. that she had posted a couple of important business letters in the door of a cab and that her husband was aiready on his way to New York so that he could not rewrite them, it is to be supposed that she mentally called herself some uncomplimentary names, and undoubtedly she was in the main not without some excuse for so doing. She was, however, a woman of expedients, and she quickly stopped the carriage to di-rect the driver to go to the nearest shop where a fish line could be bought. They were not out of the poorer quarters of the city, and the shop at which he drew up was of so doubtful a character that the cabman told Mrs. A. she had better remain outside while he went in after the line. As it was, the lady found herself regarded by the circle of loafers about with far more interest than was altogether pleasant. The fishline procured, the cab drove away, while Mrs. A. endeavored to get a loop of string down beneath the let-ters. The driver was ordered to go to a convenient and quiet Back Bay street, where, much to the mystification of the nurse maids on the sidewalk, the cab moved slowly up and down while Mrs. A. contin-ued her tedious and ineffectual angling. She varied the performance by procaring sticky fly paper, which she cut into strips and lowcred into the crack, in the delusive hope that it might attach itself to the letters, but, like the salt water which Violet fendly hoped would turn into butter if it was churned long enough, "It seldom ever did." Mrs. A. also endeavored to persuade the driver that he could take the cab to the stabie, turn it over and shake the letters out, same office, which he held till 1875, when but the scheme did not commend itself to President Barrios died and the Conserva-his mind. Perhaps the fact that the indy was now paying for the cab by the hour and ss, he was made Fresident of the House not exhausting his horse by fast driving

He has written two or three other books on for by the hour! The bill for six hours' use of the carriage Mrs. A paid without demur, tracted wide and marked attention at home but she reached home after her adventure in a state of weariness of mind and body better imagined than described.

Respecting the word "blizzard," a corre-spondent writes to London Notes and Queries: "The word blizzard is well known through the Midlands, and its cognates are fairly numerous. I have known the word and its kin fully thirty years. Country folk use the word to denote blazing, blasting, blinding, dazzling or stilling. One who has had to face a severe storm of snow, hail, rain, dust or wind, would say on reaching shelter that he has 'faced a blizzer,' or that Secretary of the storm was 'a regular blizzard.' RACING AFTER BABY. How Sympathetic Railway Men Reunited a Mother and Her Child.

Twenty years have passed since a certain Bath sea captain, entering the port of New York, telegraphed his wife at Bath to join him, writes the Portland correspondent of the Lewiston (Me.) Journal, at the metropohis prepared for a sea voyage. Accordingly, a day or two after the arrival of the message saw the wife embarked upon the through train from Bath to Boston, accompanied by an infant child scarcely two years old. This car was shunted on to the end of the Portland train at Brunswick and, leaving the child asleep, the captain's wife seized the opportunity to fill the baby's bottle with milk in the depot restau-

While the mother was intent upon her errand the train slipped quietly out of the station, and when the mother emerged from the restaurant door it was fast disappearing under Spring street bridge.

Eagerly she explained the situation to the sympathizing group of railroad men who gathered round. Baby and purse, contain-ing all her money and ticket; were in the fast-disappearing train.

A hurried council followed, and a plan was instantly formed.

Old No. 23, "the Brunswick," was sidetracked, waiting the passage of the train just gone. Uncle Thompson, the station baggagemaster at the time, ran hastily to this engine and asked her aid to overtake the flying train. The genial Charles, ever ready to aid the cause of any female in distress, volunteered to catch the robber. Hastily filling the fire-box with wood from the tender, while Thompson was assisting the woman to mount the engine, with a command to the switch man to "give us the main line," with hand upon the throttle, No. 23 fairly flew over the switches and
